8:45 am Welcome to Day Two

8:50 am 3D Printing Will Rock the World

Manufacturing jobs have been declining since 1975, but manufacturing has steadily increased. This means manufacturers are efficient, making more things with fewer people. John explains how 3D printing has the potential to transform the world by democratizing production; simplifying, regionalizing, and distributing manufacturing; relocating and shortening supply chains; and creating jobs where labor costs are high.

Speaker: John Hornick, Founder,
3D Printing Working Group
Finnegan

9:30 am How Innovation Ecosystems Work

We live in an innovative economy, but what does that mean for site selection and economic development? An innovation ecosystem is the universe of entities, businesses, resources, and assets in an area economy that enable technological development and innovation. This session will begin to explain the dynamic and help you to uncover the active parts of your own innovation ecosystem.

Speaker: Chris Steele,
COO & President North America,
Investment Consulting Associates
